

My Dream Garden

By Nuriel Cho

How does a garden filled with exotic vegetables and delicious fruits sound? A heaven to animals and a fantastical garden for many. My dream garden would only be described by one word, "Fantastical". Located in a beautiful city, with the most beautiful weather would be a perfect place for my masterpiece, "the garden". Wedged between the urban and rural sites, would be a surrounding wooden fence made like a square, painted with the perfect, clean strokes of beautiful butterflies. Throughout the entrance, would be two tiny, maple trees structured at both sides along with a "welcome to the garden doormat." In the center however, would be a beautiful old oak tree, home to both day animals and nocturnal ones. To the left of it, would be a huge, carrot patch, along with the darkest fertilizer. Growing next to the carrots, would be bright, red tomatoes as red as apples gleaming in the sun. Known for its deceiving look, my tomatoes would shock food critics and both parents and kids. Thirsty? In front of the carrot patch, there would be a wonderful stone water fountain gathering water straight from the mountains. it would also be accessible for birds as a bird fountain and a bird bath. Kids and Adults in this section would either be squatting down to pet the birds, or to pick those juicy, red tomatoes. To the right, would be a colony of beautiful white rabbits with gleaming eyes, with bright, pink noses reflecting in the hot sun. In the front of the oak tree would be flowerbeds, asserted with many colors and sizes. Daisies, Violets, Roses and more would be on display to blow the minds of young ones. Behind the oak tree, would be a handcrafted wood table with a white and red tablecloth over it. Using the table as an advantage, I will help people and open a farmers market to give my earnings to those in need. How does vegetable stew sound for a course? From a thriving city, to my amazing garden, I would devote my life to help those in need to form a community where all citizens are living happily like the way life is supposed to live.
